

Statement of participation

Amanda George

has completed the free course including any mandatory tests for:

Creating open educational resources

This 15-hour free course covered how to devise, release, use and evaluate open educational resources.

Issue date: 14 April 2018

www.open.edu/openlearn

This statement does not imply the award of credit points nor the conferment of a University Qualification.
This statement confirms that this free course and all mandatory tests were passed by the learner.
Please go to the course on OpenLearn for full details:
<http://www.open.edu/openlearn/education/creating-open-educational-resources/content-section-0>

COURSE CODE: OER_1

Creating open educational resources

<http://www.open.edu/openlearn/education/creating-open-educational-resources/content-section-0>

Course summary

Are you interested in creating your own open educational resources? This free course, Creating open educational resources, will help you to write a learning course and provide you with links to various resources for open-learning materials. You will learn about the different purposes of self-instruction and receive advice about the techniques and strategies to help the learner.

Learning outcomes

By completing this course, the learner should be able to:

- state personal motivation for producing and using OERs
- evaluate some examples of educational resources for active open learning
- plan a structured learning experience using a range of resources
- produce, release and use OER
- understand how to evaluate teaching resources.

Completed study

The learner has completed the following:

Section 1

Quiz

Section 2

What is open learning and why OERs?

Section 3

What makes a good OER?

Section 4

Finding and evaluating OERs

Section 5

Copyright and OER

Section 6

The pedagogy of open learning

Section 7

Tools for creating an OER

Section 8

Making the case for OER

Section 9

Conclusion