Course summary

This free course developed awareness of how much has already been learned and what learners are capable of. It suggested ways of 'fine-tuning', and building on, expertise already gained. It also taught some interesting theories about how we learn, and some of the key skills and tools to make learning a success.

Learning outcomes

By completing this course, the learner should be able to:

- understand how learning takes place every day
- appreciate the qualities, skills and knowledge they have already
- know better how to use computers for learning
- understand how reflection and feedback can help them make the most of their learning
- discuss some important theories about learning
- develop a learning action plan to help them move forward.
