

Statement of participation

Amanda George

has completed the free course including any mandatory tests for:

Experiences of assessment

This 1-hour free course explored the issue of assessing need, through the experiences of people being assessed by health or welfare professionals.

Issue date: 21 April 2018

www.open.edu/openlearn

This statement does not imply the award of credit points nor the conferment of a University Qualification. This statement confirms that this free course and all mandatory tests were passed by the learner. Please go to the course on OpenLearn for full details:
<http://www.open.edu/openlearn/health-sports-psychology/social-care/experiences-assessment/content-section-0>

COURSE CODE: K202_6

Experiences of assessment

<http://www.open.edu/openlearn/health-sports-psychology/social-care/experiences-assessment/content-section-0>

Course summary

This free course, Experiences of assessment, is about assessing need. It is important to understand and hear about people's experiences of being assessed by health or social welfare professionals so that more sensitive responses to those with care and support needs can be developed. We interviewed three people about their experiences of assessment. Having done that, we then asked a social worker and an occupational therapist to listen to the interviews and to comment on them.

Learning outcomes

By completing this course, the learner should be able to:

- give examples of assessment by health or social care workers.

Completed study

The learner has completed the following:

Section 1

Brian and Sylvia's experiences

Section 2

Gaynor and Liz comment on Brian and Sylvia's situation

Section 3

Anne's experiences

Section 4

Gaynor and Liz comment on Anne's situation

Section 5

General points on assessment

Section 6

Conclusion